

DIVERSITY

ON TV

Behind the Scenes and in our Lives

SOLEDAD O'BRIEN

Acclaimed CNN News Anchor and Special Correspondent

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 28, 2009

4:00 P.M.

CAMPION BANQUET HALL
SAINT JOSEPH'S UNIVERSITY

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

INFORMATION:

SAINT JOSEPH'S UNIVERSITY
OFFICE OF MULTICULTURAL LIFE
610-660-1141

 SAINT JOSEPH'S UNIVERSITY
5600 City Avenue
Philadelphia, PA 19131

Hear award-winning journalist Soledad O'Brien talk about diversity in a changing nation.

Her newest CNN Productions documentary series, "Latino in America," follows the critically acclaimed "CNN Presents: Black in America."

O'Brien joined CNN in 2003 from NBC News where she anchored the network's Weekend Today. The NAACP honored her with its President's Award in 2007 for her humanitarian efforts and journalistic excellence and she was part of the team that earned CNN a Peabody Award for its Hurricane Katrina coverage. She was also on the scene for the tsunami in Southeast Asia and the London terrorism attacks of 2005. She is a graduate of Harvard University.